

Moneyball for Education: Bipartisan Approaches to Improving Student Outcomes by Investing in What Works

Please join us for a discussion of a bipartisan paper on how to revamp federal education policies and programs to help lawmakers spend public funds more effectively and efficiently. Rick Hess and Bethany Little will present a set of principles and policy recommendations for making better use of data, evidence, and evaluation to improve student outcomes.

Come join the bipartisan conversation with:

John Bailey, Vice President of Policy, Foundation for Excellence in Education

Rick Hess, Resident Scholar and Director of Education Policy Studies, AEI

Bethany Little, Advisor, Results for America

Emma Vadehra, Chief of Staff to the Secretary, U.S. Department of Education

April 27, 2015

3:30 pm – 4:30 pm

Russell Senate Office Building 385

Refreshments served

This event is intended to comply with House and Senate Ethics Rules.

Please RSVP to alex@results4america.org.